

The general results of these researches	66
Relations of the species with the strata	67
The extinct species are not varieties of the living species	72
There are no fossil human bones	81
Physical proofs of the newness of the present state of the
Continent	86
Lands gained by the perpetual deposite of alluvial matter by rivers	87
Extract from the 'Researches of M. de Prony, on the Hydraulic System of Italy,' relative to the displacement of the banks of the Adriatic	91
Progress of the downs	100
Turf bogs and slips	102
The history of nations confirms the newness of the continents	103
The very remote antiquity attributed to some nations is not historically true	112
The astronomical monuments of the ancients have not the excessively remote dates generally attributed to them	149
Table of the extent of the Zodiacal Constellations as they are drawn on our Globes, and of the times which the colours employ in traversing them	158
Construction and use of the Table	162
The Zodiac is far from bearing in itself an assured and very remote date	173
Exaggerations with respect to certain operations in mines	179
General conclusion concerning the epoch of the last revolution	179
Ideas of researches to be still farther made in Geology	180
Recapitulation of the observations on the succession of formations	183
Table of Geological Formations in the order of their superposition	187
Enumeration of the fossil animals detected by the author	190
Description of the bird called the Ibis by the ancient Egyptians	222
Glossary	247
Index	251