of all things finds room for the exercise of his attributes, where he can raise another mechanism of worlds, and fill and animate them all with the evidence of his glory."*

* This lecture was illustrated by an extensive collection of recent and fossil corals; and specimens of living actiniæ and zoophytes, from the neighbouring sea. Among the former were fine examples of caryophylliæ and meandrinæ, contributed by Mrs. Robertson; fungiæ, by Miss Crofts; madreporæ, dendrophylliæ, and astreæ, by Lady Mantell; agariciæ, by Miss Ellen Gladwin; gorgoniæ and milleporæ, by Miss E. Mahony, and William Tennant, Esq.; flustra foliacea, by Robert Hannay, Esq.; and sarcinulæ, turbinoliæ, and milleporæ, by Rev. T. Trocke.
