

distribution of the Cyanæ and Aureliæ of the American coast, and it is highly desirable that a closer comparison should now be instituted between the species of the Mediterranean and of the Celtic Faunæ, between which similar differences seem to obtain as between the Faunæ of the Atlantic coast of North America. It can hardly be expected that similar facts should soon be brought to light for the whole extent of the two great oceans.