

extended to both hemispheres, resulting in the destruction of all living creatures. The Fauna and Flora of the Permian period did not differ essentially from the Fauna and Flora of the Coal-measures, which shows that no general revolution occurred to disturb the entire globe between these two epochs. Here, then, as in all analogous

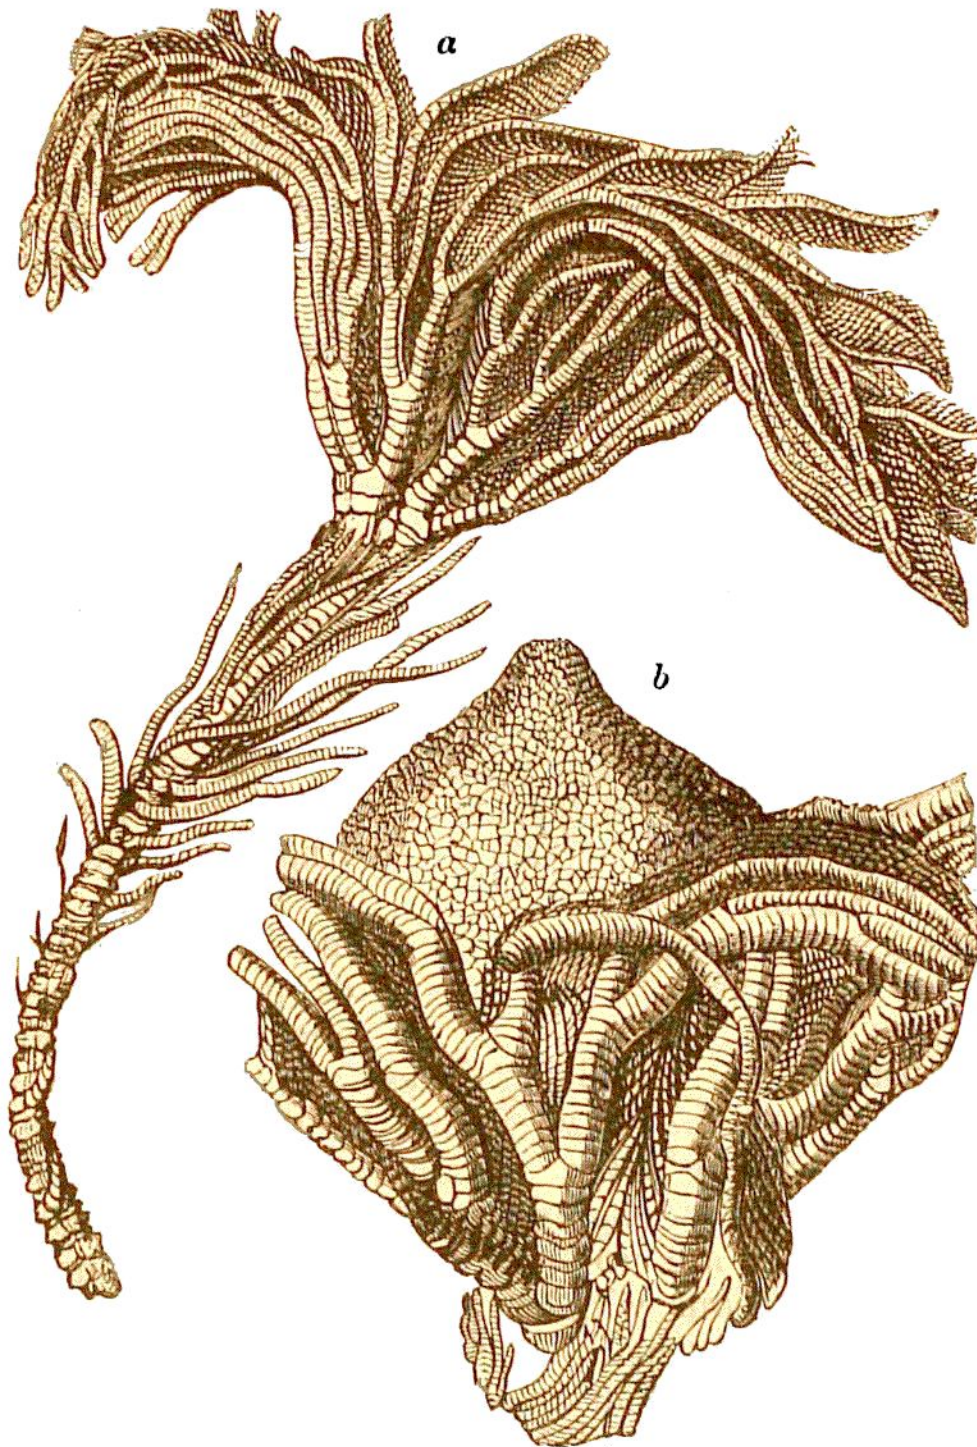

Fig. 79.

a, Pentacrinites Briareus, reduced ; b, the same from the Lias of Lyme Regis ; natural size.