DANISH Middens, remains of dogs in, i.

- DAPPLING in horses, asses, and hybrids, i. 58.
- DARESTE, C., on the skull of the Polish fowl, i. 275; causes of variability, ii. 257; on the production of monstrous chickens, ii. 279; co-existence of anomalies, ii. 325; production of double monsters, ii. 334.
- DARVILL, Mr., heredity of good qualities in horses, i. 456.
- DARWIN, C., on Lepus magellanicus, i. 117; on the wild potato, i. 349; dimorphism in the polyanthus and primrose, i. 464.
- DARWIN, Dr., improvement of vegetables by selection, ii. 189.
- DARWIN, Sir F., wildness of crossed pigs, ii. 19.
- DARWIN, G., consanguineous marriages, ii. 104.
- D'Asso, monogynous condition of the hawthorn in Spain, i. 387.
- Dasyprocta aguti, ii. 135.
- DATE-PALM, varieties of the, ii. 243.
- Datura, ii. 11; variability in, ii. 254.
- Datura lævis and stramonium, reversion in hybrids of, i. 425.
- Datura stramonium, ii. 43.
- DAUBENTON, variations in the number of mammæ in dogs, i. 36; proportions of intestines in wild and domestic cats, i. 50, ii. 292.
- DAUDIN, on white rabbits, ii. 215.
- DAVY, Dr., on sheep in the West Indies, i. 102.
- DAWKINS, W. BOYD, history of the dog, i. 15; origin of cattle, i. 85; early domestication of Bos longifrons in Britain, vbid.
- DEAF-MUTES, non-heredity in, i. 465.
- DEAFNESS, inheritance of, ii. 55.
- DEAN, potato-grafting, i. 421.
- DEBY, wild hybrids of common and musk ducks, ii. 20.
- DE CANDOLLE, ALPH., number and origin of cultivated plants, i. 323, 324, 395; regions which have furnished no useful plants, i. 327; wild wheat, i. 329, 330; wild rye and oats, i. 329; antiquity of varieties of wheat, i. 333; apparent inefficacy of selection in wheat, i. 335; origin and cultivation of maize, i. 338, ii. 321; colours of seeds of maize, i. 839; varieties and origin of the cabbage, i. 342, 343: origin of the garden-pea, i. 345; on the vine, i. 352, ii. 298; cultivated species of the orange group, i. 355; probable Chinese origin of the peach, i. 357; on the peach and nectarine, i. 361, 363; varieties of the peach, i. 363; origin of the apricot, i. 365; origin and varieties of the plum, i. 367; origin of the cherry, i. 368; varieties of the gooseberry, i. 376; selection practised with forest-trees, i. 384; wild fastigate oak, i. 385; dark-leaved varieties of trees, ibid.; conversion of stamens into pistils in the poppy, i. 389; variegated foliage, i. 390; heredity of white hyacinths, i. 395, 463; changes in oaks dependent on age, i. 413; inheritance of anomalous characters, i. 462; variation of plants in their native countries, ii. 244; deciduous bushes becoming evergreen in hot climates, ii. 295; antiquity of races of plants, ii. 425.

- DE CANDOLLE, P., non-variability of monotypic genera, ii. 253; relative development of root and seed in Raphanus sativus, ii. 335.
- DECAISNE, on the cultivation of the wild carrot, i. 344; varieties of the pear, i. 372; intercrossing of strawberries, i. 373; fruit of the apple, i. 432; sterility of Lysimachia nummularia, ii. 154; tender variety of the peach, ii. 299.
- DEER, assumption of horns by female, ii. 26; imperfect development of horns in a, on a voyage, ii. 141.
- DEER, fallow, ii. 81.
- DEERHOUND, Scotch, difference in size of the sexes of, ii. 49; deterioration of, ii. 100.
- DEGENERATION of high-bred races, under neglect, ii. 225.
- DE JONGHE, J., on strawberries, i. 374, ii. 229; soft-barked pears, ii. 217; on accumulative variation, ii. 249; resistance of blossoms to frost, ii. 297.
- DELAMER, E. S., on rabbits, i. 111, 116.
- Delphinium ajacis, i. 464.
- Delphinium consolida, i. 463, 464.