

species, represented at present by the remains of about 120 individuals, have been obtained. Among these by far the most remarkable are the Odontornithes, or toothed birds,

Fig. 422.—Cretaceous Bird,¹¹⁸
Hesperornis regalis, Marsh (16).

from the Cretaceous beds of Kansas. Prof. Marsh, who some years ago described these wonderfully preserved forms, ¹¹⁸ For this restoration and Fig. 423 I am indebted to the kindness of my friend Prof. Marsh.