

CONTENTS

TO THE FIRST VOLUME.

	PAGE
INTRODUCTORY CHAPTER,	21

PART I.

ON THE ADAPTATION OF EXTERNAL NATURE TO THE MORAL CONSTITUTION OF MAN.

CHAP. I. FIRST GENERAL ARGUMENT.—On the Supremacy of Conscience,	71
II. SECOND GENERAL ARGUMENT.—On the Inherent Pleasure of the Virtuous, and Misery of the Vicious Affections,	111
III. THIRD GENERAL ARGUMENT.—The Power and Operation of Habit,	145
IV. On the General Adaptation of External Nature to the Moral Constitution of Man,	169
V. On the Special and Subordinate Adaptations of External Nature to the Moral Constitution of Man,	197
VI. On those Special Affections which conduce to the Civil and Political Wellbeing of Society,	227