

CONTENTS.

	Page
CHAP. I. INTRODUCTION.....	1
SECT. I. The Physical Condition of Man.....	ib.
II. The general Constitution of external Nature	4
CHAP. II. THE PHYSICAL CHARACTER OF MAN.....	9
SECT. I. The Physical Character of Man, compared with that of other Animals.....	ib.
II. Differences in the Form of the Infant and of the Adult; particularly with reference to the Spine	12
III. Physical Superiority of Man, on what Principle to be estimated	18
IV. Early and gradual Development of the intellectual Faculties of Man	22
CHAP. III. ON THE POWERS OF THE HUMAN HAND, CONSIDERED AS A CORPOREAL ORGAN	28
CHAP. IV. ON THE BRAIN, CONSIDERED AS THE ORGAN OF THE INTELLECTUAL FACULTIES	43
CHAP. V. THE NERVOUS SYSTEM OF ANIMALS IN GENERAL.....	47
SECT. I. The Nervous System of the inferior Animals..	ib.
II. The Nervous System of Man	53
III. Indications of natural Talent and Disposition deducible from the Structure of the Brain....	59
IV. The general Doctrine of Physiognomy, as connected with the Form of the Body	67
V. The Development of the Human Brain, compared with that of other Animals	73
VI. Cursory View of the Extent of Human Power over the Objects of the external World.....	76