

INDEX.

---

- ANIMALS ; what kinds, provided for in the ark, 135.
- Annihilation of any thing, an unfounded opinion, 190.
- Antediluvian hypothesis, 175. Objections to it, 176.
- Ararat, Mount, 252, 354.
- Auvergne, volcanic region of, 126,—129, 340. Christian piety in that district, 306.
- Babbage, Charles, Esq. ; on the supposed contradiction of Geology and the Bible, 22. On the antiquity of the earth, 73, 320. On the Mosaic account of the creation, 165. On the responsibility of man, 276. On the rings of growth in fossil-trees, 306.—On the mechanical effect of the central heat, 324.
- Baxter, Richard ; on the possibility of an antecedent world, 269.
- Biblicus Delvinus, an anonymous writer on Geology, 186.
- Blumenbach, John Fred. Prof. Physiol. Götting. ; his belief of the unity of the human species, 68.
- Boré, Eugene ; on the Chaldeans, and Mount Ararat, 354.
- Botany, recommended as the beginning of studies in Natural History, 265.
- Bowman, J. E., Esq. ; his paper on the longevity of trees, referred to, 304.
- Brown, Rev. J. Mellor ; his strictures on the author of this book, 21. His charges against Geology, 157—162. His fallacious and pernicious reasonings, 163.
- Buckland, Rev. William, D. D. and Prof. ; on the connexion of sciences, 16. His Bridgewater Treatise recommended, 43, 300, 334. On valleys of denudation, 105. On diluvial formations, 119. On supposed concessions, 143. On "the Sentence of Death," 242.
- Burnet, Dr. Thomas ; his Theory of the Earth, 45.
- Calvin ; on the right and duty of examination, 142. On Genesis i., 154. On Rom. viii., 21, 191.
- Carnivorous animals ; their use, 87. Their existence in all periods of life upon the earth, 292.
- CAUSE, the SUPREME ; 42, 232, 341, 342.
- Chalk formation, 325, 341.
- Chalmers, Rev. Dr. ; on the antiquity of the earth, 39.
- Change, perpetual, in the universe, 41, 280.
- Chaos, universal, not admitted, 74, 233.
- Characterism of rocks and organic remains, 60.
- Charlesworth, Edw., Esq. ; his Magazine of Natural History, on the early merits of William Smith, 61. On the longevity and magnitude of trees, 304. His merits as a naturalist, 310.
- Christian Observer ; on the futility of anti-geological objections, 159, 177, 187, 197. On the duty of studying the great questions in Geology, 270. On the law of death, 301.
- Chronology ; systems of Usher and Hales, 305.
- Cleavage and joints, 329, 331.
- Coal-formations, 309, 312, 327.
- Cockburn, Dr. Wm. Dean of York ; his Letter to Dr. Buckland, 184.
- Cole, Rev. Henry ; his writings against Geology, 146.
- Conchology ; its peculiar interest, and relation to Geology, 335.
- Conybeare, late Rev. John Josias ; his discovery of the Snowdon early fossil-casts, 332.
- , Rev. William Daniel ; on ascertained geological facts, 34. His and Mr. William Phillips's Outlines of English Geol-