

	Page
The Stone Monuments—Rudstone—Devil's Arrows—Long Stone— Wade's Graves—St. Austin's Stone—Rocking-stones—Circles of stones.	216-219
Circular earth-works—Nosterfield—near Penistone—Eston Nab— Arbelow	219
The Pottery—its perishable character—its peculiar style—imitative of the Bascauda	220
Distribution of the people.—Cities in the territory.—Posts in the dales.—The dikes of Catterick and Stanwick—other earth-works.— Remains near Ilkley—Cambodunum—Conisbrough—Barwick in Elmet—Isurium.—Populous districts near Cawthorn and Malton, Acklam and Londesborough—their connection with the harbours of Flamborough and Whitby, the Camp at York, and the South of England	221-227

CHAPTER IX.

THE ROMANS.

The Sixth Legion at York soon after A.D. 117, and remained nearly three centuries.—Roman geography.	227
Ptolemy's Geography of Britain analysed:—the western coast—the eastern coast—the towns of the interior.—Brigantian map according to Ptolemy—its singular errors.	228-232
The Itinera of Antoninus which relate to the Brigantian province	233, 234
The Notitia—stations of troops according to this document.—The Chorography of Ravennas	235-238
Roman Roads, traced in connexion with Eburacum—to Lindum—Man- cunium—Derby—Ribchester—the Wall—Olicana—Bracchium.— Roads east of York.—General remarks on the ancient Ways. .	239-244
Roman Camps and Stations.—Greek camp.—Roman camp and British camp compared.—Variations in Roman encampments.—Temporary camps—military stations—towns	244-247
Roman Burials—various kinds of—stone, lead, wood—ornaments buried—urns—tiles	247, 248

CHAPTER X.

ANGLO-SAXONS AND DANES.

History incomplete between the retirement of the Legions and the arrival of the Saxons	248-250
Early separation of Deira.—Ida's conquest.—Retirement of the Kymri to North Wales	251