

CHAPTER III.—INDUCTIVE EPOCH OF HIPPARCHUS.

	PAGE
Sect. 1. Establishment of the Theory of Epicycles and Eccentrics.....	145
Sect. 2. Estimate of the Value of the Theory of Eccentrics and Epicycles.	151
Sect. 3. Discovery of the Precession of the Equinoxes.....	155

CHAPTER IV.—SEQUEL TO THE INDUCTIVE EPOCH OF HIPPARCHUS.

Sect. 1. Researches which verified the Theory.....	157
Sect. 2. Researches which did not verify the Theory.....	159
Sect. 3. Methods of Observation of the Greek Astronomers.....	161
Sect. 4. Period from Hipparchus to Ptolemy.....	166
Sect. 5. Measures of the Earth.....	169
Sect. 6. Ptolemy's Discovery of Evection.....	170
Sect. 7. Conclusion of the History of Greek Astronomy.....	175
Sect. 8. Arabian Astronomy.....	176

BOOK IV.

HISTORY OF PHYSICAL SCIENCE IN THE MIDDLE AGES.

Introduction.....	185
-------------------	-----

CHAPTER I.—ON THE INDISTINCTNESS OF IDEAS OF THE MIDDLE AGES.

1. Collections of Opinions.....	187
2. Indistinctness of Ideas in Mechanics.....	188
3. " " shown in Architecture.....	191
4. " " in Astronomy.....	192
5. " " shown by Skeptics.....	192
6. Neglect of Physical Reasoning in Christendom.....	195
7. Question of Antipodes.....	195
8. Intellectual Condition of the Religious Orders.....	197
9. Popular Opinions.....	199

CHAPTER II.—THE COMMENTATORIAL SPIRIT OF THE MIDDLE AGES.....

1. Natural Bias to Authority.....	202
2. Character of Commentators.....	204
3. Greek Commentators of Aristotle.....	205