

CHAPTER III.—SEQUEL TO COPERNICUS. THE RECEPTION
AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE COPERNICAN THEORY.

	PAGE
Sect. 1. First Reception of the Copernican Theory.....	269
Sect. 2. Diffusion of the Copernican Theory.....	272
Sect. 3. The Heliocentric Theory confirmed by Facts. Galileo's Astro- nomical Discoveries.....	276
Sect. 4. The Copernican System opposed on Theological Grounds.....	280
Sect. 5. The Heliocentric Theory confirmed on Physical Considerations. (Prelude to Kepler's Astronomical Discoveries.).....	287

CHAPTER IV.—INDUCTIVE EPOCH OF KEPLER.

Sect. 1. Intellectual Character of Kepler.....	290
Sect. 2. Kepler's Discovery of his Third Law.....	293
Sect. 3. Kepler's Discovery of his First and Second Laws. Elliptical Theory of the Planets.....	296

CHAPTER V.—SEQUEL TO THE EPOCH OF KEPLER. RECEPTION, VERIFICATION, AND EXTENSION OF THE ELLIPTICAL THEORY.

Sect. 1. Application of the Elliptical Theory to the Planets.....	302
Sect. 2. " " " " " Moon.....	303
Sect. 3. Causes of the further Progress of Astronomy.....	305

THE MECHANICAL SCIENCES.

BOOK VI.

HISTORY OF MECHANICS, INCLUDING FLUID
MECHANICS.

Introduction.....	311
-------------------	-----

CHAPTER I.—PRELUDE TO THE EPOCH OF GALILEO.

Sect. 1. Prelude to the Science of Statics.....	312
Sect. 2. Revival of the Scientific Idea of Pressure.—Stevinus.—Equilib- rium of Oblique Forces.....	316
Sect. 3. Prelude to the Science of Dynamics.—Attempts at the First Law of Motion.....	319