

remains have been discovered in the regularly deposited layers, of any of the divisions (not even the pliocene) of the tertiary series; and thus we have evidence that the placing of man on the earth was the last and peculiar act of Creation.

THE END.