

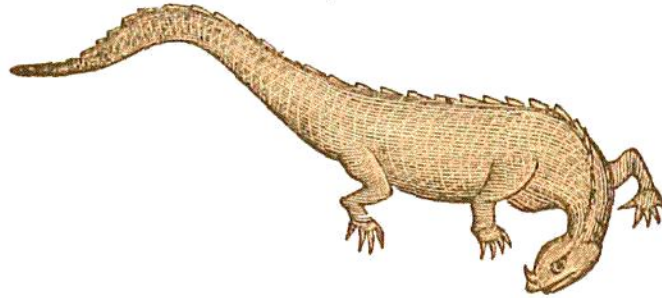

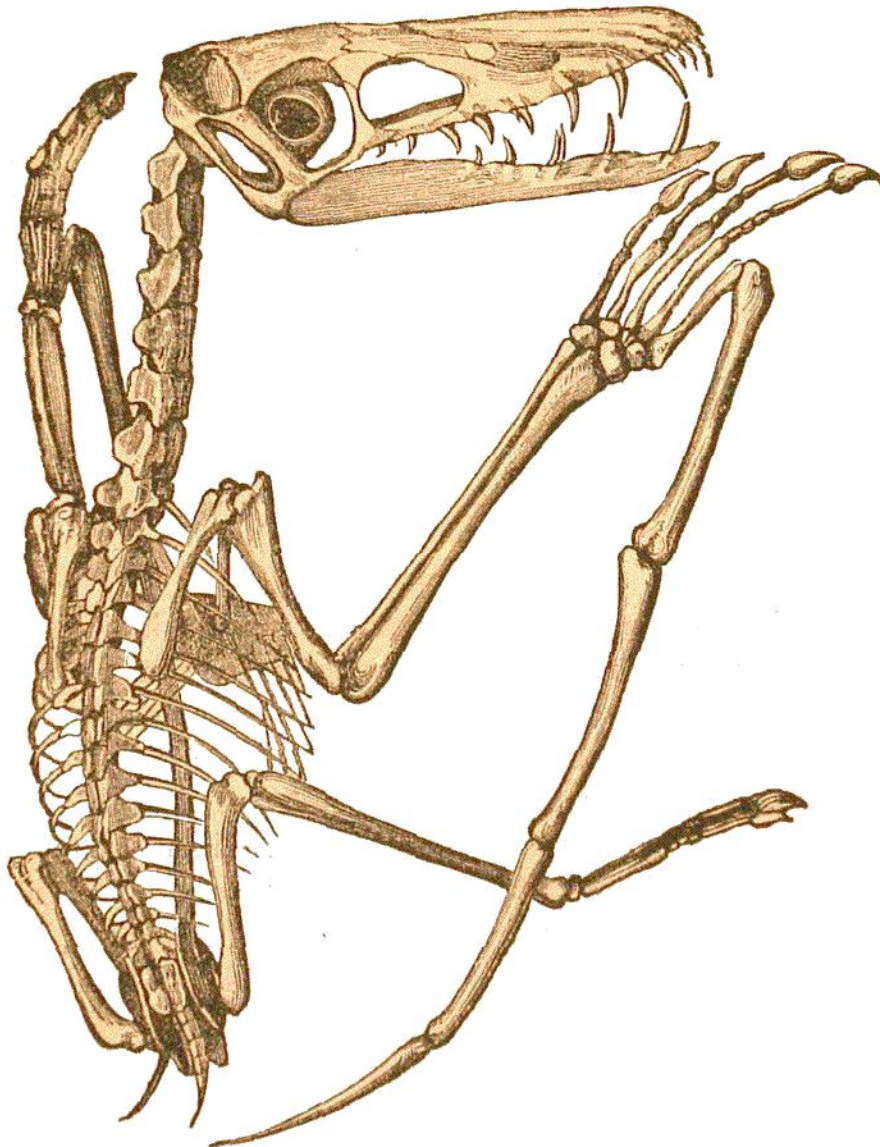

Fig. 295.

Iguanodon.

skeleton, with an enormous extension of the fifth or innermost digit or finger of the pectoral limbs. This could be only for the attachment of a membrane for flying, as in the bat.

Fig. 296.

Pterodactylus crassirostris.