

these extinct Carcharodons correspond with those of the existing species, they must have equaled the great mammiferous whales in size ; and combining with the organization of the shark its bold and insatiable character, they must have constituted the most terrific and irresistible of the predaceous monsters of the deep."

Fig. 381.

Shark's Tooth, natural size ; North Carolina.