

their terminal and lateral moraines, still in some cases as well defined as moraines in lands where glaciers now exist. Beautiful examples of such moraines are seen in the Pass of Llanberis, between the precipice south of the road and the bridge called Pont-y-gromlech. Not far behind the house called Blaen-y-nant, there is a large moraine lying on the slope of the hill. It consists of heaps of boulders, clay, and angular gravel and blocks, identical in general aspect with many

FIG. 87.

Moraines and Roches Moutonnées between Cwm-glas and Blaen-y-nant, Pass of Llanberis.