

slowly lost its hold on the people, the rise of Christianity at first offered no impediment to the freedom of philosophical inquiry. The fate of the Roman Empire and the inroads of the barbarians arrested for centuries the progress of natural history investigation. When this progress was resumed towards the end of the Middle Ages, a new spirit of intolerance had arisen from which Antiquity had been free.