

- 87, 92, 98, 101, 105, 107; metaphysical system of, 129, 137; 162; Fichte's successor, 166; 168, 171; and Schleiermacher, 172; 173 sqq.; 'Werke,' 175; speculations of, 186, 266; nature and mind as opposites, 193; idealistic system, 208; 211, 216; intellectual intuition of Fichte and, 286; 289, 290, 293; Jacobi, 300; 'Philosophy of Nature,' 310; 311, 314, 316; Tract on 'Freedom,' 317; 'Aus Schelling's Leben in Briefen,' ib.; 'Inaugural Address,' 318; "classics," 326; opposition to Hegel, 327; influenced by Boehme, 328; monistic speculations of, 342; 347, 361; 369; existence of evil, 373, 405; 477, 479; 500, 538, 565, 595, 596, 603, 604, 630 sqq.; 643, 646, 650, 670, 672, 674, 675, 740.
- Schiel, J., transl. Mill's 'System of Logic,' iii. 374.
- Schiller, Fr., iii. 98, 120, 138; and Goethe, 257, 355; appointed to Chair of History, Jena, 363; 444, 453, 462, 471, 473; 'Götter Griechenlands,' 626; "æsthetical education of man," iv. 7; 'The Vulgar,' ib.; 'Song of the Bell,' 7; 11, 12; appreciation and assimilation of Kant's views, 13; philosophy of the Beautiful, 14; 15, 17; 'Die Künstler,' 16, 19; "Kunst-idee," 16; and Körner, 18; 'The Artists,' 19; and Fichte, 20; speculations on the Beautiful, 21; assimilation of Kantian ethics, ib.; 'Ideal and Life,' ib.; 22, 24, 26, 28; letters to Duke of Augustenburg in 'The Hours,' 29, 35, 36; "play-theory," 30, 38, 108; "æsthetical education of mankind," 31; 'Naïve und Sentimentalische Dichtung,' ib., 42; correspondence with Körner, Goethe, and Humboldt, 32; philosophical Essays, 34; 'Thalia,' 35; influence of Kant's philosophy on, ib.; 'Grace and Dignity,' ib., 160; quoted, 36; 'Das Ideal und das Leben,' ib.; contrast of Realism and Idealism in poetry, 36; æsthetical intuition of, 44; 46, 90, 91, 92, 98, 105, 110; Letters on Æsthetical Education of Humanity, 114; and Goethe, 149; Kant and, 156; Æsthetical theories, 156; influenced by Hellenic ideal, ib.; assimilated doctrine of Kant, 157; 'Don Carlos,' 158; opposition to rigorism of Kant, 159; 166; and Fichte, 279; philosophical writings of, 292; Goethe and, 299; 316, 425, 474, 479.
- Schlegel, A. W., iv. 514.
- Schlegel, Fr., iii. 473; 'Lucinde,' iv. 46; theory of artistic Irony, 59, 172; 'Philosophy of History,' 423.
- Schlegels, the, iv. 173, 311, 426 (see also Romantic School).
- Schleiden, iii. 258; iv. 304, 518.
- Schleiermacher, transl. of 'Plato,' iii. 26; 37, 40, 58; Lectures, 141; 168; religious Discourses, 162; 163, on 1st Epistle to Timothy, 166; posthumously published Lectures, 167; comparison of Daub and, 167; 170, 171, 172, 175, 258, 272, 372, 387, 394; influence on Ueberweg, 411; 454, 469, 472, 480, 493, 505, 508, 526, 529, 591; and Croce, iv. 122 sqq.; and Ethics, 129; 162, 168; influenced by Kant, 171; 'Addresses on Religion,' 172, 308, 313, 316, 640 sqq.; 'Monologues,' 172, 180, 308, 313, 316; 'Letters on Schlegel's Lucinde,' ib., 173, 174; quoted, 175; 'Diary' quoted, 176; conception of Christian Church and life, 177 sqq.; contrast with Hegel, 180; Highest Good, ib.; philosophy similar to that of Socrates, 181; 205, 222, 247, 266; religion and philosophy, 268; teaching of, 271, 272; psychology, 274; 'Reden über die Religion,' ib., 305, 382; centre of religious speculation in Germany, 287, 289; 'Addresses,' 296; and Jacobi, 300; grasp of historical religion, 305; and Dilthey, ib. sqq.; and Moravian Brotherhood, 307; akin to Leibniz, 308; 309 sqq.; pantheistic side of, 311; 312; solution of religious problem, 313 sqq.; 'Lectures,' 315, 317; his psychology neglected, 316; 318 sqq.; 320, 321; and Ritschl, 322, 340; psychological question, 323; Kant and Hegel, treatment of religious conception, 324 sqq.; "classics," 326; 327; Lotze and Hegel, 333; "the Miraculous," 334; and Hegel, 339; 343; and religious beliefs, 348 sqq.; 368 sqq.; and Martineau, 377; 381; 'Der Christliche Glaube,' 382; 383, 395, 398, 406, 477; 580, 584, 596, 620, 621, 630; 665, 669, 718, 772.
- Schlosser, Fr. Chr., 'History, written from a philosophical Point of View,' iii. 150.
- Schmidt, Carl, 'Geschichte der Pädagogik,' iii. 117.