

GEOLOGICAL SOCIETY

February 18, 1853

Soups—Mullagatawny, Julienne, Carrot and Rice, A la Reine,
Ox Tail, Clear, Leek

Fish—Salmon, Turbot, Salt Fish, Boudin of Whittings, Eels à la
Toulouse, Salmon Cutlets, Fried Whittings, Smelts

Second Service

Roast Turkeys	Braised and Roast Fowls
Boiled Legs of Pork	Hams and Tongues
Chines and Haunches of Mutton	Raised French Pies
Stewed Beef and Spanish Onions	Raised Mutton Pies
Roast Beef	Roast Lamb
Brocoli	Potatoes

Entrées

Bulotines de Volaille	Sauté de Mauviettes
Riz de Veau piqué	Côtelettes de Mouton
Perdrix aux Choux	Côtelettes de Porc
Poitrine d'Agneau	Petits Pâtés aux Huitres
Filets de Perdrix à la Parisienne

Third Service

Wild Ducks, Widgeon, Snipes, Larks, Guinea-fowls, Pea-fowls,
Black Puddings, Mushrooms, Prawns, Goslings

Gâteau à la Polonaise	Gâteaux de riz d'Orange
Napolitaine Gâteaux	Charlotte de Russe
Meringues de Venise	Compôte of Damsons
Venetian Puddings	Russian Puddings
Meringues	Rhubarb Tart
Cheese Cakes	Mince Pies
Lemon Jellies	Orange Jellies

In 1852 it was notified that the Council had purchased Lewis's Map of Scotland, and had requested Mr. Greenough and Mr. Sharpe to colour it geologically. In the following year they reported that

'This laborious task, involving so much of research and of minute information, has been accomplished by Mr. Sharpe, with the assistance of the information supplied him by Mr. Greenough,' and it was resolved 'that Mr. Sharpe be requested to correct the Map from time to time, as new and more perfect information may be received.'

Daniel Sharpe (1806–56), who undertook this honorary task, was a nephew of Samuel Rogers, the poet,